Sarah Ehresman is a Research Coordinator at the Kentucky State Data Center. Her primary role is to fulfill the State Data Center's mission to disseminate Census Bureau data and other public data to governments, businesses, schools, nonprofit organizations, and the public. She responds to all inquiries for data received through the KSDC website and main phone line, where she is known for her prompt and accurate service. She also provides tailored training sessions on how to access and use Census data. She is skilled in Geographic Information Systems and regularly contributes the use of GIS to applied research projects through spatial analysis and cartography. She also helps with database management of vital statistics records and other public data.

Sarah has a Bachelor of Science in Economics and a Master of Urban Planning from the University of Louisville.

Sarah lives in Clifton with her boyfriend Evan and their dog Louann. She enjoys hiking, camping, yoga and vegetarian cooking.
